Punctuated Passage

❖ Last Sunday, we planned a picnic at the riverside. Everyone in the family was excited; even my little sister packed her toys. We left home early in the morning, carrying food, drinks, and a cricket bat. On the way, my father asked, “Did anyone bring the camera?” My brother replied, “Yes, I have it.” When we reached the riverside, the air was fresh, and the water looked clear. We spread a mat, played cricket, and enjoyed sandwiches. Suddenly, dark clouds appeared, and it started raining heavily. My mother shouted, “Quick, pack everything!” We ran back to the car, laughing and wet.
